Eurojuris Private Wealth Practice Group

The Eurojuris private wealth group focuses on cross-border issues in the areas of private wealth – Wills, trusts, probate, family/divorce and property. It is made up of law firms throughout Europe and beyond who are all committed to working together to look after their clients. The group members aim to provide joined up advice to individuals looking for legal advice on private wealth matters in various jurisdictions.

The group is chaired jointly by lawyers and Eurojuris members, Susan Glenholme and Matthew Cameron.

"I have worked in this area for nearly 20 years – first as a trainee with Debenhams Ottaway and now as managing partner. My time is split between management and generating work for our team of over 30 private wealth lawyers. Our clients range from local families in St Albans to multimillion pound entrepreneurs based in London and the rest of the UK. Many of our clients have properties and assets throughout Europe. Within the private wealth sector we provide Wills, trusts and probate, family/divorce, residential property, employment and commercial advice." Susan Glenholme, Debenhams Ottaway.

"I head Ashtons Legal's French Legal Services team and am internationally renowned for my expertise in French law. I advise on buying and selling French property, French inheritance matters, taxation and Wills. I am a contributor to French Property News and France magazine, and have appeared in the national press, on radio and television discussing the legal implications of buying, selling and owning property in France. I have lectured in French and English on cross-border legal issues and am a member of the Franco-British Lawyers Society." Matthew Cameron, Ashtons Legal.
